

The NJ Do Not Call Law is important to our residents. Although telemarketing is an important means for revenue among many companies the disruption it causes is stressful to our residents. Receiving unsolicited phone calls during sleeping hours, family dinners & other home activities is not proper and the marketers making these phone calls are often rude and "pushy" to the people they are calling. NJ residents should reserve the right to not receive these phone calls and the state should reserve the right to protect its citizens.
